Get your maverick folk art vibe on and diversify up your aesthetic leanings with Outsider Art Fair, which returns to shake up New York at the end of January, for its 21st anniversary.

The fair, which has become a cornerstone of the “outsider, self-taught and folk art” scene for both collectors and dealers, exhibits work from long-standing and new artists in the field, and although the majority of exhibitors are U.S.-based, a global tint arises courtesy of galleries from Japan, Haiti, Switzerland and the UK.

Expect to see mosaics, drawings, carvings, sculpture, skateboard decks and a lot of unusual pieces which all curve refreshingly away from established art boundaries.
